Associate Justice Frank J. Donahue of the Massachusetts Superior Court became the 15th recipient of the Silver Medal presented annually by the St. Thomas More Society of the Diocese of Worcester.

Bishop Bernard F. Hagan presented the award on behalf of the society, an organization of Roman Catholic lawyers, at the traditional Red Mass celebrated at St. Paul's Cathedral.

Superior court Justice Frank J. Donahue, Treasurer of Suffolk (left) and Judge Walter D. Allen, Central District Court of Worcester.

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Edmund G. Haddad, chairman of the Worcester Diocese, gave a biographical portrait of Justice Donahue during the ceremony. Judge Donahue was born in Northhampton, Mass., in 1901. He was elected to the bench in 1952. He was a member of the Judicial Council of Massachusetts for 12 years and has been a member of the Superior Court for 17 years.

Msgr. Haddad said to the Society of St. Thomas More, was recommended not only for his outstanding professional skills, but also for his efforts to improve the administration of justice.

"During your judicial career, and during your 20 years as chairman of the Judicial Council of the state of Massachusetts, you have been a faithful exemplar of the ideal by your untiring efforts to improve the administration of justice in this commonwealth."

After the Mass, the society's annual banquet was held in the Hagan campus center of Holy Cross College. The Rt. Rev. Msgr. John J. Fanning served as master of ceremonies.

A new society award in the form of a plaque was presented to Judge Walter D. Allen, first justice of the Central District Court of Worcester.

Negro Literature Course to be Offered

Dr. Stanley M. Vogel, chairman of the English Department, is pleased to announce the introduction of a new course in Afro-American literature. The course will fill a long-felt need of Suffolk not only in an unexplored area of American literature, but also in the contribution that university can make to the education and enrichment of the community.

The course will include a study of poems, plays, novels and short stories by Black Americans from 1900 to the present. Langston Hughes, Lorraine Hansberry, Richard Wright, Ralph Ellison, James Baldwin, and others.

Dr. Vogel said he has been on the faculty in a variety of capacities in Afro-American literature. He is also a professor of English and has been a long-time member of the field of Afro-American literature.

The course, English 111, will be taught by Dr. Vogel. It is a required course for students in the English Department.

The Coalition for New Politics

The mutual reactions to the posters announcing the establishment of the Coalition for New Politics, ranged from an enthusiastic "it's about time" to the mental trembling of others (students, faculty, and administration alike) who thought of the fiasco at Columbia and the riots which have become an annual event at Berkeley.

Qualms concerning this new group can be quickly alleviated by speaking to any member of the Coalition, or better still, by attending one of their meetings.

The Republican and Democratic parties have representative organizations in Suffolk at this time, but unfortunately, little is heard from or of them. What amazed me most about the Coalition for New Politics was their energetic ability to formulate the complex program they have in mind in a few short weeks since receiving formal recognition as a student organization. I doubt that even with the backing of the wealthy powerful established political parties, the Young Democrats and Republicans could keep pace with the Coalition.

Basically, the main objective of the Coalition is to promote a dialogue between students, faculty, and administration, and also to encourage students to become actively involved in the community surrounding them. Using these two goals as a basis, the Coalition is a group of students who are committed to the idea of a new politics.

The committee is now engaged in drafting a Student Bill of Rights to be presented to the Student Government. This bill will include a recommendation that a new Student Court be formed to hear the cases of any student accused of breaking any school rule, and of finding the student guilty to place a recommended form of reprimand or punishment upon the administration.

A delegation of faculty from the Suffolk University English Department, headed by Professor Joseph Altieri, attended the 19th meeting of the New England College English Association at Boston University on Saturday, November 10, 1989. The address, "Politics in Liberalized Literature," in Politics was presented by Richard Poirer, Professor of English at Rutgers University and at editor of Pittsburgh Courier. Distinguished guest lecturers included Dr. Robert D. Sarason, President of the National Association of the Deaf, Dr. Kenneth R. The filthy tricklers that dog the steps of Vice President Humphrey and Senator Muskie are not interested in debating with the candidates; they are interested in drowning out the candidates, in rejecting their right to say their piece. Those views make a disgusting mockery of political discourse.

Similarly, many of the students who want to "restructure" the university are not seeking to right admitted wrongs (some doubtless are sincere about it). They want to tear it down. Though they are not sure what they would

Sociology Department Moves Forward

by Richard Field

The important role sociology plays in today's highly complex society has not been overlooked by Suffolk University.

There are many fields some quite new for which a background in Sociology is either a prerequisite or an asset. Some examples are urban development, criminology, and correctional social work and its branches (psychiatric, medical, correctional, family service, child welfare and community organizations), educational problems, industrial relations, market research, public opinion polling and others.

The Sociology Department has come a long way since its early days when Sociology was grouped with Economics, Government and History and consisted of a two-man staff.

The Department's first chairman was the late Dr. Frank Backus. Dr. Backus retired in 1957 and was replaced by the Department's present chairman, Dr. Donald Furlong.

Mr. Furlong has been attached to the university since 1954. He is the founder of the Suffolk University In Service Training Program for student nurses, which was initiated in 1954.

Since 1957 the first undergraduate program of its kind in the Boston area of enables students to combine field observation and experience as a part of their social work education.

The Department has developed a Social Work Man designed for those students desiring an early start in the social work field. The sequence will feature personal analysis.

...emerging employment opportunities, admission to professional schools, social work and professional opportunities through professional advancement.

In addition, the Department is placing emphasis on courses in race and minority social problems, stratification, population, community analysis and urban social problems.

These courses reflect the growing concern of Sociology with problems of the inner city. What has ahead for the Department? The addition of two full-time faculty members, bringing the Department's total to six, the implementation of several new programs in the social work and urban studies sequences and the development of a Sociological data bank which will enable students to perform computer applications in connection with their course work.

The Sociology Department has set high goals for itself and is growing in the direction of fulfilling them.

The Suffolk University Drama Club is proud to announce its first major production this year, THE GLASS MENAGERIE, by Tennessee Williams. This important drama concerning the illusions and unreality of a mother and her daughter is being directed by Mr. Al Corona, an instructor in theatre at Emerson College. The scenery and make-up is being designed by Mark Craven, a graduate student at Suffolk, while the lighting will be designed by Don Loto, a senior and president of the Drama Club. Donna Assad will design the costumes.

The play stars Dorothy Smith, a thoroughly talented actress as Amanda, the mother. Kathleen Isbel will portray the sensitive role of Laura, the daughter. Miss Isbel is one of the best actresses in the history of Suffolk theatre, and her performance will be excellent. Joseph Plato will mark his debut as an actor in the role of Tom. The narrator and brother to Laura, while Bill Dwyer, of THE SANDBOX and THE PROBLEM fame will be the gentleman caller. All in all, with such a capable and experienced cast, as well as an excellent director, the production has all the makings of being an absolute success.

The production will be provided free of charge to all students showing a Suffolk I.D. Card at the Box Office when picking up their tickets. For non-Suffolk students, the fee will be $1.00. You are cautioned to obtain your tickets early as these are reserved seats only, and early indications are that the show will be sold out. The box-office is located in the rear of the theatre, and hours will be posted. The Drama Club office is situated in the projection booth in the balcony of the theatre if any assistance or information is desired.

The party regulars chose to ignore the people. The Party regulars favored Mr. Nixon by not according to a Gallup Poll on the rise of the Republican Convention. Governor Rockefeller's greater support with the people came from Independents and disaffected Democrats, similar to General Eisenhower's support.

All these statements point out the inequalities that exist in the fascinating world of politics. I would hope that Mr. McInerney would understand the complexities involved in politics and history, and the necessity to preserve certain relationships. If he does disregard his position for a President Humphreys, he will at least see that the Republican Party is a relic as shown by the average reader's comments.

Debate is Dead

By David McInerney

The student tabbed his finger tentatively. "Look, Ky and Thien are Catholics. Right?" "Wrong," I said. "They're Buddhists. Both of them." The student stared at me with obvious astonishment at a loss for further argument. I had not felt like talking about the war anyway, and so the conversation died. He went back to his class and I went back to my hot dog.

This little episode, perhaps as well as any demonstrates why it no longer really matters which side of the Viet Nam debate a person is on. A generalized national policy transcends individual instances. It may be begun by a single event, but its objectives are always broad in nature. The containment of communism by force where necessary was a policy initiated by Truman and continued through four administrations. Perhaps it was inspired by Berlin, and further defined by later crises, but the substance of the plan was that communist subversion would be prevented by whatever force necessary, wherever such subversion occurred.

However one feels about the morality of the plan or about its practicality, one thing is clear: the Viet Nam war has killed it. In fact there was no more Viet Nam, no politician need bother to make the promise. The disgust and repulsion felt throughout this country toward the war was intellectual, but emotion has extricated us and for all any possibility of its repetition. The people would not tolerate another such venture, regardless of their rational beliefs, or the subject. On this particular issue, emotion has supplanted rationality.

What this means for the duration is an unresolvable dilemma.

Here Piggy

Well fellow students, all I can do about what you do you see? "Puzzled" I'm not. I see the deplorable condition this university is in at the end of each day. Such a condition is brought about by students who are either too lazy or too ignorant to deposit their trash in a proper receptacle. (I didn't mean house-break you yet!) Such a condition is brought about by students who don't have enough respect for themselves or Suffolk to keep the university clean. Just walk into the student lounge if you can wade through the garbage and you will see what I mean. Newspapers are scattered everywhere, garbage-filled lunch bags litter every table, and cigarette butts line the carpeting. And the students of this university act as if such a sordid scene is their right. I don't know why haven't we got a student union? One of the answers is quite obvious to me. All the Administration has to do is count the number of cigarette butts in the lounge, carpeting, and left in the dumps as all plans for a union or any other student center. (Maybe for some students that's where a union ought to be in a dump.) Some students in this university have fought mightily hard to get a lounge and to obtain some measure of student autonomy, while others have just with gains away as fast as they arrived. What's a matter with you Suffolk students? Don't you know that unless you start taking some responsibility over what you have you can expect nothing from it. Administration or don't you care?

The second victim of my somewhat "brutal" and "unsubstantiated" attack is that fine spirit of a man, the Suffolk University custodian (the phantom). He never seems to be around whenever there is any cleaning to be done. I have often wondered what he gets

Speech Contest with Cash Awards

Phi Alpha Tau, the Communicative Arts Fraternity here at Suffolk has been given the green light to go ahead with their newest venture. They will sponsor a public-speaking contest for Suffolk students with one hundred seventy-five dollars in cash awards for the top three entrants. - Mass Media-Information or Brainwashing?
- Life is Worthwhile in The United States
- What is the Role of the College Student in the U.S.?

The contest will be presented in two stages, preliminaries and finals, and will be held shortly after the first of the year.

If you would like a chance to expound your views and sentiments to a Suffolk audience, and at the same time vie for those delicious cash prizes, leave your name, address and phone number at Phi Alpha Tau headquarters, room 20 in the old building. Then he crawls into the woodwork when there is any work to be done, or does he sit on his fat back-side in the maintenance office all the long day. In take the whole question of disfigureable physical appearance, so characteristic of the radical students, the hockers and the hippies, few adults object to long hair and beards as such—they have been worn with elegance in other periods. What is objectionable is the utter slovenliness with which they are worn today, accompanied by an equal slovenliness of dress.

This squall is deliberate, of course. It is elegant to signify a rejection of and contempt for the world of decent manners. These rebels don't care to live in peace with others, civilly intolerant, they would like to turn on the rest to their special mode of life.

So the decline of manners is a matter of some significance. It has often been remarked that manners are the glue that holds society together, man having a fair amount of innate savagery in him. Or to recall Machiavelli that political realist was making no idle claim when he said that as laws are necessary that good manners may be preserved, so good manners are necessary that laws may be maintained.

Manners as a manifestation both of tolerance and respect for law are particularly important in our political society. More than any other, it was founded and thus far has been preserved in a framework of tolerance. The founders tried to make impossible the emergence of religious intolerance, the hate of previous ages. They tried to guarantee tolerance for the individual and the individual's viewpoint, on the part of government as well as everyone else.

The political system wouldn't work otherwise. In a vast land of conflicting interests and numerous ethnic strains, reasonableness and compromise in the best sense are not luxuries but essentials. By and large the nation has been able to adhere to those standards up to now.

We don't know whether the present slovenliness is a passing phase, maybe it is. Certainly we don't know of any pat remedy for it. But we do think it is in no wise suffering that violence frequently erupts out of these selfish, contemptuous and bigoted attitudes.

And it is hard to see that it bodes well for the country when far too many people assault not only a political system but the dignity of the individual and of human life itself.

The Suffolk Rams open their basketball season this year on December 7 against Babson at 8 p.m. The Rams are looking forward to another winning season which includes a pretty rigorous schedule.

The Suffolk team is led by captain Dave Helberg. Dave is a Phi Sigma graduate of Cambridge High and Latin An outstanding player in high school he made the Suburban All Star team in 1965.

Last year the Rams' center led the Rams in rebounds with 255, setting a school mark. He also finished second in the scoring department with a 19.4 average.

In anticipating the success of the team Dave Helberg is confident in another winning year. "We lost a lot of Sullivan last year this brings up the question of lack of experience. The team this year has a lot of spirit and good players which will help us make up for experience needed."

The team's strategy this year is emphasis on defense. With practice will under way at the Cambridge Y, the Suffolk center is pleased with the ball handling and passing of the team. Dave also feels that the players are moving more as a team. "The coaches were quite satisfied with the progress so far."

Two players that the Suffolk School believes will help the Rams are Rich Gaudes who didn't play much last year but is quite improved and forward Tim Sullivan who should add a little more.

A lot of the guys, according to their own words, are looking for the Lowell, Haverhill, and other teams which take place at Lowell High School. "We are in a good position to win a lot of games. Last year we had a lot of momentum for the rest of the season."

Let us meet Dave Helberg

Coalition

of the Reston have been training interested students in draft counseling and following four have been meetings and follow-up practice sessions, these students will be available to any man on campus who has a question concerning his constitutional rights in the draft system.

The members of the Coalition for New Politics share a common political philosophy which reflects their past support of Bobby Kennedy and Gene McCarthy. And it is about time this more liberal attitude was implemented into Suffolk on an active level. As I have already mentioned, previously established political groups have pretty much limited themselves to passing out literature and button concerning their party's candidates. An active political group on campus will encourage others to follow suit, utilizing their own political views.

The Coalition's views and objectives will not appeal to many on campus, but it will force people to stand up and make their opinions known. The Coalition student who doesn't get involved simply does not belong in any university and will be of no value to society. For this reason I am pleased to have had the opportunity to write this report and I wish to ask every student in this school to attend a meeting to speak with a member as soon as possible. I'm just asking you to do what the Coalition's members demand. "DO SOMETHING."

In reflecting the team's future Dave Helberg predicts, "with the right breaks we should win more than we lose."

The sport with Babson should be an exciting game. All students are urged to attend and help the team off to a good start.

Other sports news include the Suffolk Gold team which won the first Little Four Intercollegiate football tournament at the Saddle Hill Country Club in Hopkinton.

The Suffolk team finished with 42% points after three days of competition, followed by Brandeis University, 15%, Clark University of Worcester, 24% and Bentley, 25%.

The individual medal honors were shared by Suffolk's Randy Gallo and Brandeis' Al Comerforth 240 for 54 holes. An organized tennis team is in the making at Suffolk. Some tentative matches have already been scheduled for next spring and a few practices have been held already. Anyone interested in joining this prospective team should contact Mr. Mattas.

Plans are still underway for publication of an alumni magazine. If you have any ideas, please let us know. We are looking for feature stories, personality profiles, and anything else you have to offer.

How about sending in some news about one of your friends, or yourself?

One of the subjects banded at the alumni social on November 2nd was where and when next June's affair would be held. June is a long way off, so we'll wait first for news of an earlier dance, maybe Winter or Spring.

John D. O'Brien was named principal of the Howe Junior High School in Billerica. With the system since 1952, John was promoted from his post as vice-principal at the high school.

Herman Hemingway LL.B., special assistant to Mayor Kevin White was the recent guest speaker at the Lexington Commission on Suburban Responsibility.

Dr. Harry Goldman LL.B., a radiologist and ex-general practitioner, began another career next February 4th. That's when he'll be sworn in as a Vermont lawyer. Philip J. Bailey BSJ88 has joined the Mansfield News & Leader as reporter and photographer.

George A. Conitt LL.B.29 was appointed presiding justice of the Brockton District Court. He succeeds Judge Anthony Kuska, whom he also succeeded as Clerk 14 years ago.

Robert J. Heller LL.B.68 is teaching Law at Graham Junior College. The Rev. Kenneth E. Bath was dedication speaker at the Valley Community Church in Agawam, on Oct. 20th.

Joseph D. Mikas is the claim department manager at the Lynn office of Travelers Insurance Co.

THE ALUMNI NEED YOU

Playtex invents the first-day tampon

(We took the inside out to show you how different it is.)
Outside: it's softer and silky (not cardboard). Inside: it's so extra absorbent... it even protects on "Pier" days. Your worst day. In every lab test against the old cardboard kind... Playtex tampons were always more absorbent. Actually, it's more absorbent on the average than the leading regular tampon. Because it's different. Actually adjusts to you. It flows out. Puffs out. Designed to protect every inside inch of you. So the chance of a mishap is almost zero! Try it! Why live in the past?
